

A black and white line drawing of a compass rose. The rose has eight primary points, with the cardinal directions (North, South, East, West) being significantly longer than the intercardinal directions. A circular ring is inscribed around the center of the rose, with small tick marks indicating degrees. The letter 'N' is positioned directly above the top point of the rose, and the text '1 / 10000' is positioned directly below the bottom point.
